Specialist Geared Australian Share

Aim and strategy: To provide high returns over the long term through geared exposure to securities listed (or about to be listed) on the Australian Securities Exchange (ASX).

The objective of the investment portfolio before gearing is applied, is to provide a total return (income and capital growth), after costs and before tax, above the S&P/ASX 200 Accumulation Index on a rolling three-year basis.

The aim is to manage gearing to a level that is supported by expected income. Therefore an investor can gain greater exposure to the Australian share market than an investor with a non-geared exposure.

The strategy primarily invests in a diversified portfolio of securities listed (or about to be listed) on the ASX, including exchange-traded funds (ETFs). The investment portfolio is geared, which allows it the ability to borrow in order to increase the amount that can be invested. The aim of gearing is to contribute more capital and to provide greater exposure to the Australian share market.

Investment managers are also permitted to purchase up to 5% in international listed securities, where those securities are also listed on the ASX. The strategy may also invest up to 15% in cash. However, in certain market conditions the strategy may hold higher levels of cash.

The strategy diversifies manager risk across a range of investment managers by using a multi-manager approach. Exposures are to managers who demonstrate competitive advantages within the various investment styles that are used when investing in the Australian equity market.

The diversity of exposure by investment style seeks to minimise the risk of underperformance should one particular investment style be out of favour within a particular investment timeframe.

Suggested minimum investment timeframe: 7 years

Relative risk: 7/ Very high

Aims to distribute: Yearly

Asset class	Benchmark (%)	Ranges (%)
Australian shares	100	85–100 ¹
Cash	0	0–15

1. Due to gearing, the effective exposure to Australian equities can be up to 250%.

We aim to manage asset allocations within the asset allocation ranges. However, in certain circumstances, we may manage actual asset allocation outside of the asset allocation ranges. Such circumstances may include but are not limited to where one of the underlying funds is closed to new applications or withdrawals, during changes to the product structure, asset allocation or manager line-up, or in certain market conditions. The investment option will not deviate outside the asset allocation ranges to pursue investment opportunities based on short-term expectations.

All other information for the investment options remains unchanged.

Additional information about the Specialist Geared Australian Share investment option

The section below the heading 'Additional information about the Specialist Geared Australian Share investment option' on page 48 in the Original PDS (Part 2) is deleted and replaced by the following.

This section provides additional information about the Specialist Geared Australian Share Investment Option (referred to in this section as the 'Fund'). The Fund primarily invests in a portfolio of Australian companies listed, or about to be listed, on the ASX, and is not restricted in the sectors in which it invests. These sectors may include:

- financials (such as companies within banking and insurance)
- resources (such as companies in the mining industry)
- consumer services (such as supermarkets)
- healthcare
- telecommunications services
- industrials (such as companies primarily focused on the provision of commercial services and supplies, machinery manufacturing or construction engineering), and
- energy.

The Fund may also hold up to 15% in cash. However, in certain market conditions, it may hold higher levels of cash.

International exposure

The Fund may also invest up to 5% in companies listed on international exchanges, including Australian companies listed overseas, where these investments are seen to add value and are consistent with the Fund's investment objectives*.

International exposure may include investment in developed markets such as New Zealand, the United States of America or the United Kingdom.

In normal circumstances the Fund's international investments are fully hedged back to Australian dollars, with the aim of minimising effects of currency fluctuations.

* The amount of exposure to international shares may change depending on market opportunities. Current exposure can be obtained by contacting us.

The 'Gearing' section in the 'Additional information about the Specialist Geared Australian Share investment option' section on page 48 in the Original PDS (Part 2) is deleted and replaced by the following.

Gearing

Gearing provides the Fund with the ability to borrow in order to increase the amount available for investment. The aim of this is to contribute more capital and to provide greater exposure to the Australian share market. The investment manager will take out a loan and invest the proceeds together with application money from investors. This means that if the Fund's gearing ratio is 60%, for every $1 you invest, the Fund will borrow an additional $1.50 to invest. The Fund is 'internally geared', which means the Fund borrows the money instead of investors borrowing the money. The advantage of this internal gearing is that the Fund is able to use its capacity to qualify as a large investor and therefore borrow at competitive interest rates, and investors don't need to apply for a loan or offer security in market downturns as all gearing obligations are met within the Fund. The Fund's syndicated loan facility agreement is unsecured.

Gearing can result in significant variations in the value of the investment; consequently an investor can expect magnified returns and losses.

The last paragraph in the 'Gearing management' section in the 'Additional information about the Specialist Geared Australian Share investment option' section on page 48 in the Original PDS (Part 2) is deleted and replaced by the following. All other information in this section in the Original PDS (Part 2) remains unchanged.

Gearing management

The portfolio's (Fund's) gearing ratio is reviewed daily and rebalanced regularly in accordance with these guidelines. Additionally, the gearing level is managed to ensure continued compliance within the current capitalisation safe harbour rules for continual tax deductibility of interest expenses.

The 'Additional risks' section in the 'Additional information about the Specialist Geared Australian Share investment option' section on page 49 in the Original PDS (Part 2) is deleted and replaced by the following.

Additional risks

Gearing has the effect of magnifying returns, both positive and negative, which means that the risk of loss of capital may be greater than if gearing did not take place.

The portfolio (Fund) has a syndicated facility agreement (agreement) with major banks. This agreement expires from time to time and there is a risk that any new agreement will not be under the same terms and conditions of previous agreements, as the cost and availability of leverage is dependent on the state of the broader credit markets, and increases in interest rates may affect the cost of borrowings and so reduce returns. Additionally, the portfolio's ability to achieve its investment objectives may be affected where there are changes to its borrowing capacity, or if it is unable to obtain suitable finance or borrowings.

In connection with the loan taken out to provide the gearing, an event of default by the investment manager includes:

- failure by the investment manager to make payments when they are due
- insolvency of the one investment manager, or the portfolio, and
- breach of one of the investment manager's representations or warranties.

The agreement is an unsecured facility, as such no assets are used as collateral. There is a risk that, if an event of default occurs, the loan providers may exercise their rights to demand the amount owing to be payable on demand or immediately due for payment by the portfolio.

Hedge Fund disclosure

The last paragraph in the 'Hedge Fund disclosure' section on page 49 in the Original PDS (Part 2) is replaced by the following. All other information in this section in the Original PDS (Part 2) remains unchanged.

The Specialist Geared Australian Share investment option (both Series 1 and Series 2) is currently subject to additional disclosure under RG 240. For further information go to the section additional information about the Specialist Geared Australian Share investment option on page 48 of the Original PDS (Part 2) and in the ASIC benchmarks and disclosure principles for the Specialist Geared Australian Share Fund document which is available online at asic-disclosure-principles-specialist-geared or can be obtained free of charge on request by contacting us on 133 267.
